Can you play at the college level?

At the youngest ages or the beginning of the college recruiting process, this is the number one question you should be asking yourself as a player and also as a family.

1. What are your future goals in education?
2. What are your future goals in playing?
3. What do you want for your commitment level as a student athlete?
4. What is your commitment level as a person or player?
5. Have you seen a college game at all levels (D1, D2, D3)?
6. Do you have a Pros and Cons list of playing or NOT?

How to get noticed by a college coach

1. College coaches want to see (academics)
 2. Narrow your focus (refer to criteria)
 3. Team planned events
 4. ID Clinics and Camps
 5. Player Videos
6. Prepared flyers, pamphlets, and profiles

How to get noticed by a college coach (ON the field)

- Arrival
- Warm ups
- Preparation
 - Dress
 - Leadership
- Presence in the game
 - Motivation
- Impact in the game
 - Communication
 - Team player
 - Post game

College Recruiting Letters

First Impression Letter – Hand Written

- Introduction
- Information on you as a player, your team, and who you play for
 - Express interest in the coaches school
 - Express interest in the coaches program
- Information on where the coach can see you or where you will be
 - You (and/or parents) contact information

Follow Up Letter – Email

- Brief email to coaches regarding a upcoming event or outcome of an event
 - Thank You email for attending event
- Or
- Thank You email for a meeting or ID Clinic or Campus Visit

NEVER should the parents be sending these letters.

Applying for the NCAA Clearing House

Step 1: Register as a student athlete online at www.eligibilitycenter.org (recommended before Junior year)

*There is a FEE for the service and is usually around $90.00

Step 2: After registration, visit Student Services at HS and have transcripts sent to the NCAA Clearinghouse.

Step 3: Test Scores (ACT or SAT) must be sent directly from them to Clearinghouse, choose

Step 4: Review full Clearinghouse document from our FCE website and the Clearinghouse website as there is more information on different processes depending on what division you would like to play at.
