

Court Location Terminology used with alphaBASKETBALL

Introduction

It is prudent for a group of coaches to have consistency (across teams) in the use of the many basketball terms used when coaching, including the terms used to describe the various court locations. From a player's perspective, this will make it easier for them to understand the game and make it less intimidating. If all coaches use similar terms, it will be easier on players and coaches when team rosters are different in subsequent years, as everyone will have a common vocabulary and understanding.

The suggested court location names are outlined below - this should make a useful page for coaches to bring with them to practices. Most coaching professionals use the terms identified on this page. As such, the alphaBASKETBALL videos and other materials often use these terms, so we suggest coaches use them with their players.
