Use our unique Head Customizer and Customize your stringing!

A custom strung head not only is practical to allow you to rip the duck for days. It also helps create that extra swagger that you need to turn heads on the field. Why take the gamble by choosing colors blindly!? Well, now you don't have to...You can use our head customizer to see the perfect stringing design.

What type of Mesh is best for you?

Hard mesh tends to leave a more consistent pocket along with a longer lasting piece of mesh. Breaking in the mesh will have somewhat of a longer process than a SOFT mesh but in the end your pocket will stay true to form longer than any other mesh type. This will help prevent kids from fiddling with their sticks during practice, blaming their stick for throwing wide or into the ground. Hard mesh works well for kids who have a more over hand baseball style throwing motion, a true fundamentalist. In the elements, hard mesh wont bag out as easily as some meshes will which helps keep your pocket consistent.

Soft mesh is a popular mesh because it is easier to string and has a quicker break in period for your pocket than hard mesh. Some people love the loose rattling feel that the soft mesh provides for your cradling and ball control. Pockets tend to whip or hold the ball a little more which creates dragging sensation on your shot. This will help create torque on the release point of your shot which in the end creates more velocity for your shots. Soft meshes shelf life is not as long as a hard mesh would be. Players will tend to use up to twice as many pieces of soft mesh during a season then hard mesh. Soft mesh also will bag out more than hard mesh in the humidity and the elements. Soft mesh would be more popular amongst the indoor game versus the outdoor game.
