

WAA Challenger Baseball Program,

When you consider someone's life, you often think about what brought them the most joy. When I think about my son Bryson's life, I know without a doubt, some of his happiest moments were being part of a real baseball team! Bryson passed away when he was 7 years old. When a parent loses a child you always think about what could have been, and missed opportunities.

Words could never express my gratitude to the special needs baseball team that gave my son the ability to actually live one of his dreams. Playing baseball is just a children's game to some, but it was so much more to us. It was a chance to cheer, to run, to laugh and just forget about doctor's visits and hospitals for a few hours. No one can ever take these happy memories away from me.

I will forever stand as a proud supporter of the Challenger Baseball program!
